Notes regarding visiting the RWTH and Lehrstuhl I

Maria G. Westdickenberg

1. Aachen is roughly equally distant from the airports in Brussels (BRU), Düsseldorf (DUS), and Cologne/Bonn (CGN). Frankfurt is a larger airport and a bit further away. Düsseldorf has the advantage of a convenient train connection from the airport to the Aachen Main Station. One can buy a ticket at the airport train station. (It may be convenient to buy a ticket at one of the machines.)

2. Lehrstuhl I is on the second floor (counting the ground floor as zero) of the mathematics building located at Pontdriesch 14-16 (next to REWE). It is about a 25 minute walk from the Main Station. Alternatively, taxis and buses stop right outside of the station. As a third option, one can take a local train to the station Aachen West. From there it is a 10 minute walk to the building.

3. When you find the building, enter at the main entrance, go up two flights of stairs, and turn right to enter the area of Lehrstuhl I.

4. My office is 214, the last office on the right-hand side. The kitchen is across from it. Frau Behnke (the secretary of the organization) has the first office on the right-hand side of the hall.

5. The center of Aachen is in between the Main Station and the mathematics building. One can pick up maps and other information at the tourist office by the Elisengalerie.
